INTRODUCTION TO COOPERATIVE CALLIGRAPHY

It's not like you're writing the rules with a pen and ink on a scroll. It's not like you're writing the rules with a pen and ink on a scroll. It's not like you're writing the rules with a pen and ink on a scroll.

"Do not try and bend the spoon. That's impossible. Instead, only try to realize the truth."

"What's that?"

"There is no spoon."

"There is no spoon?"

"Then you'll see that it is not the spoon that bends, it is only yourself."

Hi! If you're reading this, that means that my (FAQ) large-printed (well, pseudo) prelude to a bunch of weird (documented) nonsense has been stored correctly deep in the wells beyond. And still that you're halfway through in realizing the world is an illusion.

Haasssssh. If only it were that easy. You're technically like, 1/4th of the way through. But something's something, right?

So, welcome to [redacted] FAQ. I feel like I should get this out of the way: this whole FAQ paradox [redacted] business is a ridiculously complicated venture. But most gracious beings confesses you can only buy into the FAQ per alpha [redacted] line, because the servers clog up and because [redacted] is a buggy piece of shit who treats forum posts like USERNAMEs for some reason. In layman terms that means that after this one I'm essentially out of forever from writing.

Well. Not FOREVER. I can try and circumvent it. I have my theories, and with some more [redacted] (haha, funny joke) to experiment with this whole game making thing I could get into the game (but enough so that I can (hyp: theoretically) travel back to when we entered the session, kill it for good, and take their place at the [redacted] line without causality itself falling apart. So like, it's [redacted] game-making, don't be a dick and mock it, but after that first FAQ's posted I can't just write all of the FAQs myself and that's not my goal. It's my job to help. God knows that'd be straight-forward, right? Instead I'd have to convince my [redacted] to write, co-write and/or re-write the FAQ parts and post them using their handles so that paradox [redacted] doesn't actually happen. It's--

Space!

In god. Oh god this is just textbook isn't it? I'm being forced to repeatedly re-teach my friends how to use the game so that I can teach them how this whole game-making works for the rest of eternity. It's like, teaching textbooks, teach-your-friends-how-to-bake [redacted] classfuckery. There's, [redacted] I'd like to see your own brain's input in the form of learning experiences?

← grace arc?

I hate this game since [redacted]s.

Anyway, since the're happening and linear [redacted] lines are a joke, that is gonna be sent out in a later. I'm just a plain old narrative causality nazi sure that the part of this FAQ that you would see the most was the end of it came to you. If this matter is the one you're stuck with, ask your session notes, the game's principles are weird like that. After you've read one FA, though, that's all you can ever read again, for like, the SAME reason. You can only publish once. It's to permit just enough info for players to learn about the game without accidentally ruining the whole session.

I should probably explain what this [redacted] is and what this [redacted] is.

This [redacted] IS:

- A [redacted] on very specific topics that you won't find anywhere else.
- A lore repository for all of the weird stuff EB and I do.
- A very elaborate way to get all of my back.
- Technically not an FAQ, but like, that's your opinion, man.

This [redacted] is NOT:

- Organized or logical by any reason. Hell because it [redacted] (but it's not) hell because there will be a lot of us writing this, give me a break.
- A [redacted] walkthrough. No [redacted] at anything can prepare you for [redacted]. It's just a thing you can't do.
- A good chicken recipe seriously I'm open for some good food to eat at the end of the day and EB can't cook and I'm here here for player meetings and the day that I do. All do anything near me. I do the day that I do my cold and snail's pace and bury my equally cold and shallow [redacted] with it, and my feet are gonna be stilled just because there won't be anyone to actually throw the dirt back in on me. I can't see if outside is [redacted] (but it's not) let alone their distance to the [redacted] line I don't think I can handle another day of rages reserves at all. What was I saying.
- Complete. And it probably never will be. We're on a suicide here.

← wssle?!

So without much more to go I'll be signing off for the time being [redacted]. It's a [redacted] of this ridiculous mess-apple material flying around. It means that my plan worked and I'm [redacted] (but it's not) hell because there will be a lot of us writing this, give me a break.

CHAPTER 8

GENERAL QUERIES

1985-0827

"I don't think God [redacted] we ask questions. Everyone is searching, whether they realize it or not. You get to a point in your [redacted] when you think, there's got to be more than this."

-Herman Phillips, The Bookings
(http://www.humanphillips.com/)

1985?

REPORT SOURCE: MISSISSIPPI

Let's be real here: a lot of the FAQs floating in the Internet Plus are pretty much useless. Not just because half of them are mostly PR garbage, assorted rebranders, and useless [redacted], but also because of how [redacted] organizer/player data that causes FAQs to get torn up and fused with other FAQs - we're talking nonsense like "the college is a" goes to [redacted] for really no reason whatsoever. [redacted] is a really shitty net name, and we're all stuck with it.

SBURBSIM?

For that reason, I'm formatting this section in the classic [redacted] FAQ fashion. That way if questions get messed up they'll be practically unrecognizable from the normal ones.

Big Thanks to TR for hosting this for me.

Question: Help! I got stuck in the middle of a quest, and it won't let me proceed!

What's that you say? [redacted] HEARING? It's more likely than you think.

Golden Key?

Oh, what quest are you doing anyway? If it's the "The [redacted] request, then you [redacted] the [redacted] At will [redacted] and show nothing. Enter the room/etc/whatever again and it should start working. If it's [redacted], then make sure that there are no other players around your general vicinity. Leave the Server Room if you can't seem to [redacted] with [redacted] company, but only if you're a player (anything that isn't the mental 1, for both classes and [redacted], vid players, bots, or really hates bots) that make the whole system OK. Tell them to go and it should probably work again.

Otherwise, quests can break for absolutely any reason at any time. ANY moment. Every piece of this I'm blah blah. You know the drill. I'm actually going to put you LATER on how these things can break, but you know, right to be you [redacted] getting THIS part of the document. I'll give you a rundown, though:

1. If it breaks and the game still works as normal, it's intended.
2. If you're a [redacted] (or a Wizard), it's ESPECIALLY intended.
3. If you're a bard, I promise the universe just doesn't work and you're screwed.
4. If nothing's actually been broken then you're just a wee little [redacted] in their pants, and you should be ripped, mate.

Question: How bullshit is everything.

SBURBSIM

Oh god it's one of these. Who said you could come into my FACT Did I ever write this? Am I being tested? Anyways, yeah, I don't know if this is a joke everyone is on in or if this is just some game devs trying to pull the Turing Test, but I'm not gonna really go and question it. Just. That's a thing that exists and you have to live with it.

But yeah. Extremely.
